Judds set for Keillor's special show

Garrison Keillor will return to the airwaves for a Thanksgiving holiday special on Saturday, Nov. 26. The 90-minute show will begin at 7 p.m. on Wisconsin Public Radio station 90.3 FM-WHLA La Crosse.

Billed as "A Prairie Home Folk Song Show," the program will be broadcast live from the Vanderbilt University campus in Nashville, Tenn.

Keillor's guests include the mother and daughter vocal duo from Kentucky, The Judds. The three-time Grammy Award winners have had 12 number-one singles since their debut album was released in 1983. Other scheduled guests include novelty songwriter-musician Ray Stevens; Nashville's legendary Chet Atkins; fiddler Johnny Gimble; folk musician Mike Seeger; and singer Kate MacKenzie.

In addition to Keillor's home-grown humor and storytelling, the program will feature songs from the Department of Folk Song, a regular feature from past "Prairie Home Companion" broadcasts.

Repeat broadcasts of "A Prairie Home Companion" air statewide on the Wisconsin Public Radio network Saturday evenings at 8:30.

The mother-daughter vocal duo The Judds will be among Garrison Keillor's guests.
