

Teachers meet in Madison

MADISON — Thousands of teachers and education support personnel will make their annual trek to the Wisconsin Education Association Council's convention in Madison Oct. 23-25. Up to 10,000 WEAC members are expected to attend more than 100 workshops and seminars on a wide range of education topics during the three-day event.

The keynote speaker at the general session Oct. 24 is Garrison Keillor, host of "A Prairie Home Companion" on public radio. Nationally syndicated columnist Clarence Page is the headliner at the education issues luncheon Oct. 25.

This year's convention is at the Dane county Expo Center in Madison.
