

ON THE SHY — Here's some particularly good news for all you shy types out there. Garrison Keillor, the world's most outgoing shy person, is bringing his radio show, A Prairie Home Companion, to Ames Oct. 11 for a live broadcast from the Iowa State Center.

The show had to be moved from the 440-seat Benton Auditorium to the 2,700-seat C.Y. Stephens Auditorium to accommodate the expected crowd.

However, not all the tickets for the larger hall have been sold. So, if you've got an extra $1.50 and you're free from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. next Saturday — and what shy person isn't? — give the ISU ticket office a call at 294-2436 and place your order.

As usual, A Prairie Home Companion is brought to you by National Public Radio, Powder Milk Biscuits, the biscuit that gives a shy person the strength to do what has to be done, and, we suspect, the Lake Wobegone, Minn., Chamber of Commerce.

For those unfamiliar with this show, it features folk-type music (for the most part) and the irresistible humor of Keillor, who gets our vote as the funniest person on radio today.
