■ Jane Alexander was sworn in Friday as chairwoman of the National Endowment of the Arts by Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor at a festive luncheon in Washington's Great Hall of the Library of Congress. Garrison Keillor made the several hundred guests laugh while baritone Robert Merrill got them all to join in a rendition of "America." Alexander told those gathered: "It's an honor and a privilege to be part of this Clinton administration. And I will work hard to let everyone know in this vast and very diverse country the success story of the National Endowment for the Arts."
